Camille Rahier joined the competition and distribution law team of the firm as associate in 2023.

After previous experiences in the legal department of a major company and in law firms, Camille advises and litigates for French and international companies in a great range of industries (automotive, pharmaceuticals, food, cosmetics, digital, etc.).

She advises and litigates in distribution law, competition law and commercial contracts law. Camille assists undertakings in carrying out their business, through the negotiation, drafting, performance of commercial contracts, the development of pre-litigation and litigation strategies, and dealings with authorities.
