Copyright

The protection of a creation by copyright is subject to the criterion of originality, which is defined in case law as "the imprint of the author's personality".

This criterion of protection applies to all works of art, whether they are in the field of fine arts or applied arts, or whether they are material and physically distributed or immaterial and digitally distributed.

Thus, it is important to be able to determine whether a creation is eligible to protection by copyright with regard to the criteria defined by case law and, if such work is protected, to define the most appropriate defense strategies in case of copyright infringement.

With a recognized practice in the field of copyright, JP Karsenty assists clients in all these stages, from legal advice, to pre-litigation and litigation.
